PRESIDENT WILSON'S VICTORY.

London comment saying that if President Wilson has succeeded in inducing Germany to modify her plan of submarine warfare in accordance with the American demands he has won the greatest of diplomatic victories in abundance justified. The truthfulness of the victory, as the Stanford Morning News points out, consists in the fact that President Wilson has not only kept the United States out of war, but has managed it without the smallest sacrifice of right or principle. The Morning

News says:

"What the people are approving is that the president is not only keeping the country out of war, but he is doing it without any sacrifice of honor or principle. Colonel Roosevelt seems to agree with this. In fact, he is being pretty generally considered as simply an effort to discredit the president. It has been proven to be such a failure that the eastern of his fellow citizens, as Colonel Roosevelt says, is stated to succeed himself.

In his achievement President Wilson has won the cordial approval and commendation not of democrats or republicans or progressive, but of Americans. He is approved by Americans as an American for what is distinctly an American act.

While the work that President Wilson has done in straightening out with Germany is greater than any party or set of principles is only to keep it also from the party standpoint, and in it Victory which means party prestige under

Mr. Wilson's continued leadership.

And there is opportunity before the present now to duplicate that victory in setting our differences with Great Britain.

Unquestionably, he is working to that end.

To remove the declaration of contraband against our cotton and to secure restoration of the freedom of the seas for our neutral and non-contraband commerce.

President Wilson led no doubt as to his purpose in this direction in the last note written to Germany relative to the case of the Lusitania. His assertion that this country would "make no act" in the maintenance of our unquestioned rights was as clearly applicable to English as to German violation of international law.

With two such diplomatic victories to his credit, President Wilson's popularity is certain to become firmly fixed, not only within, but far beyond, party lines.

AIR RAIDS INEFFICIENT.

Almost every incident of the European war in which air raids have figured supports the assertion of Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the British admiralty, that the German Zepplins have killed no soldiers or sailors in England, and only once have they inflicted any damage which could be ascribed as of the slightest military importance.

Mr. Balfour attributes this result to the fact that the Zepplin attacks are made under cover of night, preferably a moonless lieutenant who, with fiery darts from his airplane sent a Zepplin and its crew crashing to the earth. Descriptions of air duels have been frequent, and they make good reading.

But as a matter of fact, there is not one achievement of the aeroplane or the dirigible considered as a fighting craft which can be said to have had even the smallest effect on the outcome of the war, nor is it shown how whole fleets of them could be used as a determining factor in the

The proven use of the air craft is in making observations regarding the movement of the enemy. In this they have developed a field of usefulness which makes them indispensable in modern warfare.

Aside from that, their chief work has been in the slaughter of innocents. When the rules of warfare are written again, however, the present conflict, use of these machines should be held within their proven sphere in inflicting damage upon the actual enemy.

SOME BIG PENSION BILLS.

The close of the European war will witness the beginning of the payment of the biggest pension bills in the history of the world. Millions of injured and disabled soldiers with their productive powers curtailed, if not altogether eliminated, will be a drain upon their nations in a double sense.

While producing less, they will cost their countries more.

Men permanently disabled through war service must be provided for from the government treasury. This is an item of expense which will compare with the interest on their overgrown national debts. The Berlin Vorwaerts, organ of the German socialists, asserts that "after the war the imperial debt and pensions alone will demand an annual expenditure of at least two and a half billion marks ($425, 000,000), or a little less than the entire ordinary and extraordinary imperial expenditure for 1912." The entire income which Germany has hitherto enjoyed will thus be consumed in interest and pensions alone.

The status of Germany may be taken as a fair example of the condition in this respect in which the other powers engaged in the war will find themselves. The enormity of war expenditures alone presages bankruptcy, but these are just the beginning.

If the war debts might be gradually paid off and extinguished over a long term of years, there would be some hope in the present outlook. But with interest on war debts and pensions demanding all available income, the situation is desperate. Ordinary maintenance, it is practically impossible to see where sinking funds are coming from to begin the process of extinguishment.

We have sometimes felt that American pension bills of $100,000,000 annually were staggering. There is not a nation of the first class engaged in the present conflict but will probably be called upon to pay several times that sum.

The deeper we go into the financial problems of the European nations, grown out of this war, the more bewildering and impossible of solution they become, and the more unlikely it seems that any of them will escape bankruptcy.

WHAT THE CROPS COULD BUY.

Though the pessimist prefers to walk in darkness, The New York World throws the light on the screen for his special benefit and the facts of figures must appeal to him.

And here they are, convincingly displayed:

"The wheat crop in the United States will be

1,100,000,000 bushels, valued at $110,000,000.

"The corn crop in the United States will be

2,200,000,000 bushels, valued at $220,000,000.

"The cotton crop in the United States will be 10,000,000 bales, valued at $100,000,000.

GOING BY AMERICAN POSSE

Orozco One of First to Join Madero, But Later Joined Huerta.

El Paso, Texas, August 31.—Government officials here tonight said they had received reports confirming earlier rumors that General Francisco Orozco, prominent military leader during Mexican revolutions of the last five years, had been killed in a battle with Huerta and an American posse. Civilian United States customs officers and members of the Thirtieth United States Cavalry participated in the battle, which, according to reports, was fought in the green river canyon, Culiacan county, Texas. After a raid on the Dick Love ranch yesterday, Orozco and four companions were pursued from the Sierra Blanca country into the foothills. Orozco died at dusk tonight. Four other Mexicans were killed. According to reports, the raiders, led by Orozco, arrived at Dick Love's ranch, near Sierra Blanca, yesterday and forced the host to supply them with dinner. While they were eating, Love and two cowboys approached and shot at the Mexicans. The shooting, according to reports, was the beginning of the running fight, which ended when the Mexicans were killed. The body of General Orozco's family here this evening. The body of General Orozco's family here this evening.

Sketch of Orozco. General Francisco Orozco was the son of a storekeeper in Culiacan. When he reached manhood he became a "millionaire" and, with his party of guards, escorted pack trains loaded with bullion from the mines through the bandit-infested hills to the railroads. Orozco was one of the first to join Francisco Madero when the latter overthrew the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz. He remained in the forefront throughout the Mexican revolution, escaping the pursuing federalists by his knowledge of the mountains and the mobility of his mounted men.

When Madero became president Orozco accompanied him to Mexico City, but after a disagreement with the president, he returned to his home in Culiacan. He was later joined by Huerta, who was then fighting against Madero. He took part in the capture of Madero and was later in charge of the execution of Madero and his family.

Orozco was one of the nine federal generals at the battle of Cuernavaca, but was defeated and fled to another command. He was later captured and executed by Huerta.

CHINESE URGED TO UNITED ACTION

Impressive Appeal by President Yuan Shi Kai—Dis-honesty and Inefficiency of Officials Denounced.

Peking, July 31.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—President Yuan Shi Kai uttered at a recent cabinet meeting an impressive plea for united action in China, which made a deep impression upon Chinese officials. His publication in English today caused much discussion among foreigners. The Peking Gazette characterizes the address as "couched in the usual language of over-enthusiasm," but makes no attempt to discount the seriousness of the denunciation and inefficiency of Chinese officials which the president denounced as a great menace to the republic at a time when outside pressure is threatening.

Our assent to the southern Manchuria has gradually gone into the hands of foreigners," said the president. "The foreign aggressor has come to their doors, but our people are still dallying in the midst of calamities. As I am advanced in age and have received the sacred and weighty trust from the Chinese people, how can I let the country go to ruin when I am assuming the duties of the chief executive of the republic? By all means I must save the country. To avert the impending disaster is the sacred duty which lies upon the shoulders of every one of us."

Our country does not manifest any sign of instability. China is a country of confidence of other nations, and it is most unlikely that any foreigner will invade or insult our country. To avert the impending disaster is the sacred duty which lies upon the shoulders of every one of us."

Shortcomings Deplorable. After deploping what he regarded as the many shortcomings of China, the president continued:

"Some persons say that on account of our vast country and population, the destruction of our country by an alien people is a matter of impossibility. Look at Korea, the area of which is not much smaller than Japan. Some Japanese papers have stated of late that although China has changed the government, her internal affairs are just as deplorable now as in the late dynasty and that bribery and gambling among officials still prevail."

"During the China-Japanese war and the Boxer trouble our people were severely stricken up and determined to

"on straw and taste the bitterness of the sword. But when the anxious time once passed they forgot everything. It is worth while to note that when the imperial government was overthrown, it was the Chinese who destroyed it, not the foreigners. The new government was created by the Chinese, and it is the duty of the Chinese to maintain it. It is not only to overthrow the government, but also to destroy the language of the people and the very spirit of the nation."
